AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 15 (UPI) -- A Texas businessman says Willie Nelson conspired to renege on a contract providing exclusive rights to sell drinking water with the country star's name on it.

Pat Fahey, owner Drippin' Springs Water Company, filed a lawsuit against Nelson and an Arkansas company, charging breach of a contract granting him exclusive rights to sell Willie Nelson Spring Water in the Austin area.

Fahey alleges Nelson and executives from Simpson Distributing met on Nelson's famed tour bus 30 days before the 1-year deal was canceled, The Austin American-Statesman said Saturday.

Nelson's lawyer told the newspaper he only had an oral agreement with Simpson and had not authorized Simpson's sub-license with Fahey.
